

The citizens of Indiana do not need to receive telephone calls from banks because there is little important business conducted by banks and individuals that would require communication by telephone. If individuals desire to be contacted by banks they do not have to place their names on the list of Indiana's Telephone Privacy law. I personally do not wish to be contacted by telephone by banks because I already receive more than enough information through other means.